

WORKING WITH 'TABOO' & 'VIOLENT' VOICES

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN PEOPLE'S VOICES SAY THE THINGS WE FIND HARDEST TO HEAR?

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

Whilst hearing voices is often a taboo in western cultures, being linked with media stereotypes and images of 'madness', there are some kinds of voices that are even harder to talk about - 'taboo voices'.

Taboo Voices may include ones that speak of violent and/or sexual themes - things that the voice-hearer, and those around them, find very distressing. They can be extremely graphic, sometimes overlapping with violent thoughts, impulses or disturbing visions.

Taboo voices can feel very powerful and overwhelming, but they are also the kind of voices that many find very hard to talk about with others - for fear of judgement.

THIS ONE DAY EVENT EXPLORES:

- The experience and its impact on voice-hearers and their wider network.
- Understanding our own reactions and feelings about 'taboo' voices and the way this impacts on our actions/decisions.
- Re-framing 'violent' and 'taboo' voices and exploring personal meaning.
- Ways of thinking about, and minimising, risk of violence.
- Working with taboo/violent voices in a safe and supportive way.
